

Biological Researcher

Job Description

Primary purpose and function of this position:

- Design, perform and report experiments for the development and implementation of biological and immunological assays in support of Teva projects

Major duties and responsibilities:

- Perform experiments for the development and implementation of biological and immunological assays and related tasks including but not limited to samples analysis, data analysis, documentation, archive and SOP preparation.
- Review scientific literature and relevant pharmaceutical regulatory guidelines to plan and perform the development of bioassays
- Draft and review protocols and reports in compliance with pharmaceutical regulations and Teva internal guidelines
- Ensures lab notebooks and documents are complete, signed and stored appropriately
- Work with the Team Leader in identifying, studying, communicating and solving problems in biological assays development and sample analysis
- Work with interfaces within Teva
- Track each project milestones to ensure deliverables needed on Time
- Work under pressure to meet projects timelines
- Participate in laboratory maintenance
- Present activities, progress and achievements in various forums

Qualifications

Education:

- MSc in Life science or equivalent (or higher degree)

Knowledge/Skills Requirements:

- Knowledge of GLP, GMP, GCP and ICH regulatory guidelines
- Understanding of the drug development process, familiar with project management
- Experience in development of biological methods, immunogenicity methods and SPR, BIAcore assays
- Experience in cell culture, Strong research skills
- Effective written and verbal communication skills in English
- Pharmaceutical and or Biotech industry experience – an advantage

Send your CV to: Shirley.Zelikman@teva.co.il