

R&D Project Manager

A stealth mode medical startup is expanding its' Israeli office and currently looking for a talented Mechanical / Biomedical Engineer, with prior R&D and Project Management experience in the Medical Devices field, to join our team as an R&D Project Manager.

Responsibilities will include:

- Design and Development work with the companys' CTO and sub contractors.
- Lead an R&D project from concept and feasibility stages up to regulatory approval.
- Collaborating and supervising sub-contractors
- Develop and review specs., writing manufacturing protocols and lab test protocols.
- Collaboration with an international team across multiple time zones.
- Managing and tracking the quality project development milestones and deliverables.

Requirements:

- Experience with electronics\PCB and control systems – significant advantage.
- A degree in Mechanical / Biomedical Engineering from a leading academic institute.
- At least 3 years of R&D professional experience in the Medical Devices field.
- Previous experience in leading R&D projects from concept and feasibility to regulatory approval.
- Ability to create and understand drawings and working with CAD software's (Solidworks expertise is an advantage) .
- Vast experience working with external suppliers.
- Knowledge and expertise in working with subcontractors.
- Ability to lead projects.
- Excellent writing skills.
- Excellent communication skills.
- Ability to learn by oneself new professional skills.
- Ability to multitask.
- Ability to work well with others in a multifaceted team environments.
- High level of language proficiency in English – spoken as well as written.
- Willingness to travel abroad.

Location: rehovot

CV to: michal@insighthr.co.il