

Pre-clinical & Product Engineer - Job Description:

Nurami Medical - a clinical stage medical device company, developing a polymeric implantable biodegradable materials/polymer for soft tissue repair, is seeking a highly motivated preclinical and product engineer. The company is located in Haifa.

Responsibilities:

1. Lead, design and execute animal studies of new products made of degradable sealants/adhesives. Including:
 - A. Production of prototypes and characterizing their morphological, mechanical and chemical properties.
 - B. Reviewing and writing technical\animal studies protocols, reports and scientific papers in English.
 - C. Leading the execution of animal studies performed at CROs (not in house). Including communication & logistics.
2. Supporting production processes in clean room.
3. Supporting the R&D team in performing R&D experiments
4. Working according to the company's QA system (ability to read and implement SOPs).

Requirements:

1. Master's degree in the following fields: Biomedical and tissue engineering, Biotechnology or other relevant fields.
2. Work experience in the industry or at an academic lab is mandatory. Previous experience in conducting animal studies is preferable.
3. Highly responsible, accurate, details oriented and independent
4. Ability to lead projects and animal studies.
5. Excellent reading/writing and verbal communications skills in English (Must)
6. Recommendations - Please send c.v. to: nora@nurami-medical.com