

Development Engineer (Student) - Job Description:

Nurami Medical - a clinical stage medical device company, developing a polymeric implantable biodegradable materials for soft tissue repair, is seeking a highly motivated student for supporting its product pipeline development. The company is located in downtown Haifa.

Responsibilities:

1. Lead, design, and execute studies for the development of new biomedical products made of degradable polymers. Including:
 - A. Production of prototypes, product and production optimization.
 - B. Characterization of their morphological, mechanical, chemical and functional properties.
 - C. Development and validation of new analytical methods.
 - D. Writing technical documents, protocols, development reports, literature search in English.
2. Support manufacturing of the company products in a cleanroom environment.
3. Work according to the company Quality Management System.

Requirements:

1. A bachelor student in from a relevant engineering faculty (Materials, Biomedical, Biotechnology, Chemical).
2. Availability of 3-4 days every week (20-30 hours) during standard working days/hours.
3. Highly responsible, motivated, accurate, detail-oriented and independent.
4. Self-learning skills, troubleshooting skills, hard worker.
5. Excellent reading/writing skills in English.
6. Work experience in the industry or at an academic lab – an advantage.
7. Please send CV to: koby@nurami-medical.com and specify work availability.